New Truck Owner

Moses Motor Co. and C. T. Moses, Jr. (left), owner, have the door open to a new Chevrolet 1/2 ton pick-up for Earl Carson of Lynchburg. The color is red, and it's only one of the many Chevrolet new car and truck choices open to visitors, beginning with Thursday's big "Open House". For everyone there were gifts and refreshments and the opportunity to see all the new models. New truck owner Carson and his son-in-law, L. O. Moses Motor Co. invites all new car and truck admirers to stop by, whether during "open house" or not. The display floor is filled with autos to admire.

Pastor Speaks

For Parents And Children

Several years ago Art Linkletter, the TV personality, had a personal tragedy when his daughter, Diane, committed suicide after going on a bad trip with LSD. Subsequently Linkletter began to engage in a crusade to educate people on the dangers of drugs. In February, 1970, he wrote an article for Reader's Digest explaining suggestions for parents who are faced with drug experimentation by their children. The following suggestions are adapted from that article and give good instruction to parents in dealing with their children in any situation, not only with drugs:

1. Face up to the ugly truth. Sooner or later in the current state of our society your child is going to be offered some illegal drugs under enticing circumstances probably by a member of his own peer group.
2. Do things together with your child. Talk to them more--around the dinner table, when you are driving, whenever they are receptive. Express interest in what you child does and then listen.
3. Look for the best in your children. Praise them and trust them, but don't be complacent.
4. Watch your child, not like a policeman or jailor, but with a steady, loving concern. If a child who has been an achiever in his studies or athletics suddenly becomes a non-achiever, be concerned.
5. Ask yourself if you are being too permissive. If so, tighten up on your discipline.
6. If your child comes to you and admits that he has been experimenting with drugs, don't over-react with horror. A panic reaction and a heavy-handed counterattack will only breed antagonism.
7. Even if the child won't go along, educate yourself. In any discussion about drugs, if the child knows more than the father he will score points and ask questions that seem unanswerable.
8. Do everything in your power to counteract indifference or apathy.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WRONG NUMBER?

Lesson for October 3, 1971

Background Scripture: Exodus 3: 1-20; II Timothy 1:8-9
Devotional Reading: Mark 2:13-17

Have you ever noticed how often it seems that God makes some poor choices in the people whom he calls for leadership? Frequently he selects precisely the kind of persons that you and I would ignore or reject if the decision were ours. Sometimes we can't understand how God could exercise such poor judgment.

A case in point was the man named Moses. He seemed the least likely candidate to become the leader who would successfully lead the people of Israel out of Egypt. He had started out well enough, for though he had been born a Hebrew, a "lucky break" caused him to be raised in the palace by the Pharaoh's daughter. Brought up as an Egyptian noble, he had all the benefits of the culture and education of the royal court. These bright prospects, however, were thrown away with a senseless, violent act.

The Tragic Disappointment

Many years later this tragic failure is confronted by God in a mystical experience and in his awe, asks: "Whom am I . . .?" There were a number of answers that might have occurred to us:

- the murderer of an Egyptian slave-master
- a fugitive from Egyptian justice
- a simple Midianite shepherd
- an eighty-year old "has-been"
- a descendant of Abraham who knows little, if anything, of Abraham's God.

Surely this is not the man for the job! Perhaps God has gotten a wrong number!

This same thought occurred to Moses too. He too could not believe that God wasn't giving the message to the wrong man. "Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh, and bring the sons of Israel out of Egypt" (Exodus 3:11). It was a good question, but Moses would find that God could always match a good question with a good answer.

I Will Be With You

Actually, Moses had asked the wrong question. Instead of asking, "Who am I?" the real question was "Who are you?" It is not because of who Moses is, but who God is that the task can be performed. "I will send you" and "I will be with you" he is assured. The success of this mission will not rest upon the power of Moses, but upon the power of God. All that Moses will have to do is to hear the call and respond to it.

But why Moses?

For one thing, Moses had "turned aside to see this great sight." If he had ignored the burning bush, if he had refused to listen to God's voice, he would not have received the call. Furthermore, Moses not only "turned aside," but he accepted the challenge and thus God was vindicated in his choice of this man whom we would likely have regarded as a "wrong number."

More people are investing with this savings certificate than any we've offered.
There must be a reason . . .
The success of Golden Savings Certificates has many reasons — but the basic one is that most people have a thousand dollars or more in their family savings. And they can't find a safer, more profitable way to invest it than in these First Federal certificates.
For every thousand dollars you put in Golden Savings Certificate you know you'll earn $59.20 in just twelve months.
There is another important reason why so many people have switched to Golden Savings Certificates: because only First Federal has them. And more and more people in this part of Virginia are discovering how pleasant and convenient it is to save at First Federal — Why don't you?
